The government is not prepared to say positively that it will refuse to co-operate further in the tests being made with Dr. Friedmann's tuberculosis serum. We are at the same time averse to proceeding without full knowledge of the remedy.

"Dr. Friedmann himself admits that his serum, injected into monkeys, guinea pigs and rabbits, produces tuberculosis and death. He declares that it has an opposite effect on human beings. This is something new in medical science. All serums of this kind now known to the profession have identical effects on animals and humans.

"The cultures that were recently given us by Dr. Friedmann for laboratory tests are worthless without full knowledge of how these cultures are produced and such other information.

"The government is interested only in determining whether or not Dr. Friedmann's remedy is harmless. We owe this to the public. If the serum, as Dr. Friedmann admits, acts as a virulent infecting agent on smaller animals, we want assurance that it will not have a similar effect upon human beings.
